What are the most popular restaurants in New York City? For the fourth consecutive year, Lutèce was voted No. 1, The Four Seasons No. 2 and La Côte Basque No. 3, according to the views of 3,500 diners in the just-published 1988 Zagat New York City Restaurant Survey. Rated among the top restaurants by cuisine were: (American) The Four Seasons, Continental, Cellar in the Sky; (French) Lutèce and Chantrelle; (Italian) Il Mulino, (Seafood) Le Bernardin, (Chinese) Sun Lee Palace and Siu Lam Lung (Steak-house) Peter Luger in Brooklyn, (Japanese) Hatsuhashi, (Indian) Darbar and Dawat, (Mexican) El Parador and Rosa Mexican. The 10 most expensive restaurants in New York.

sparky's

all american food

Mission:

Sparky's Mission is to provide the purest and best-tasting food at the lowest possible price. It's not easy, but we believe it is important to try. Here is how we do it:

All of Sparky's hot dogs and hamburgers come from local, small family farms, and never have growth-promoting hormones, antibiotics, or other yucky stuff. The livestock are fed only grass and all-natural grains. They are raised on sustainable family farms. And we use only the best cuts of meat — no creepy hot dogs here!

Our cheese, ice cream, milk, and butter are hormone-free and come from family and community farms. We buy as much locally-grown and organic produce as possible and make most of our toppings, catsups, and mustards in-house with organic ingredients. Our bread is baked everyday by a local baker. We hope you love our food and enjoy eating it as much as we enjoy making it for you.

Thank you,

Sparky & Friends
